ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Further to one of the recommendations of the Minister of Learning's Forum on School Councils, Alberta Learning developed this guide with the support of the Council on Alberta Teaching Standards and in consultation with the Alberta Home and School Councils' Association, the Alberta Teachers' Association, the College of Alberta School Superintendents and the Alberta School Boards Association.

The guide's content recognizes that an effective school is one characterized by the principal's leadership role in developing and implementing - in collaboration with the school's teachers, the school council and other members of the school community - a vision for the school that is focused on student learning. The guide aims to be informative and suggestive of actions, rather than prescriptive.

In keeping with Recommendation #76 of Alberta's Commission on Learning, in consultation with stakeholders, Alberta Learning will be working on a quality practice standard and identifying the knowledge, skills and attributes (KSAs) required of all principals. These KSAs will include competencies related to working effectively and collaboratively with school councils.

I – INTRODUCTION

Purpose of the Guide

A school is often viewed as the heart of the community it serves. In your leadership role as the principal of the school, you bear the responsibility for creating and nurturing a learning community that supports and reflects the values and expectations of students, teachers, parents, non-parent community members, business leaders and the general public. In Alberta, “in each school operated by a board or charter school board, parents and the community have an opportunity through the school council, as one means, to advise and consult with the principal and to advise the board or the charter board on any matter relating to the school” (School Councils Handbook, 1999). Working effectively with your school council is necessary to achieve the education goals and expectations of the school, parents and community.

A Principal's Guide to Working Effectively with Your School Council is intended to provide you with suggestions for working effectively and collaboratively with your school council. This resource provides a general overview of relevant legislation, suggests strategies you may find helpful when working with the school council in your school and provides a set of sample questions you can use to reflect about your work with your school council that may stimulate new ideas about further improving your collaborative engagement with it. You should consult your district's policies and guidelines governing school councils and their functions. As well, you may wish to consult additional references, some of which are listed in the bibliography.

How to Use the Guide

A Principal's Guide to Working Effectively with Your School Council is a beginning point for you in establishing an effective working relationship with your school council. Whether you are a seasoned veteran or newly designated principal, you will find this resource to be of value. As a new principal, the guide provides information, suggestions and strategies you will find useful as you begin developing your relationship with your school council. As a more experienced principal, you will find the guide helpful in maintaining and building a meaningful relationship and in assisting you in mentoring members of your administrative team or others interested in pursuing leadership positions.

II – UNDERSTANDING THE ROLE OF THE SCHOOL COUNCIL AND THE ROLE OF THE PRINCIPAL

Role of the School Council

Public education embodies our values and shapes our community. Parents, teachers, principals, policy makers, community members and business leaders have roles and responsibilities for ensuring that students benefit from quality learning experiences. The community needs to share its aspirations for the school and provide support to the school as it strives to provide the best possible learning opportunities for its students. The school's staff needs to communicate to community members its goals for student achievement, growth, performance and conduct. This ongoing dialogue between the school and its community takes place in large part through the school council.

♦ PROVINCIAL LEGISLATION AND POLICY

Alberta recognizes the right and responsibility of parents and the community to be involved in the education of their children. Parents, community members and school staff should be involved in key decisions that effect the education of students.

Section 22 of the School Act (Act) legally establishes school councils and provides them with the opportunity for meaningful involvement. This section states:

- (1) A school council shall be established in accordance with the regulations for each school operated by a board.
- (2) The majority of the members of a school council shall be parents of students enrolled in the school.
- (3) A board of a separate school district or a division made up only of separate school districts, by resolution, may require that the parents of students enrolled in a school operated by the board who are members of the school council must also be of the same faith as those who established the separate school districts, whether Protestant or Roman Catholic.
- (4) A school council may, at its discretion,
  - (a) advise the principal and the board respecting any matter relating to the school,

- (b) perform any duty or function delegated to it by the board in accordance with the delegation;
- (c) consult with the principal so that the principal may ensure that students in the school have the opportunity to meet the standards of education set by the Minister;
- (d) consult with the principal so that the principal may ensure that the fiscal management of the school is in accordance with the requirements of the board and the superintendent, and
- (e) do anything it is authorized under the regulations to do.

(5) Subject to the regulations, a school council may make and implement policies in the school that the council considers necessary to carry out its functions.

(6) A school council may make bylaws governing its meetings and the conduct of its affairs.

(7) Subject to the regulations, a board may develop and implement policies respecting school councils.

(8) A board shall establish an appeal process or conflict resolution procedure under which the principal or the school council may apply respecting disputes on policies proposed or adopted for a school.

(9) The Minister, on the request of the board, may dissolve a school council without notice at any time if the Minister is of the opinion that the school council is not carrying out its responsibilities in accordance with this Act and the regulations.

(10) The Minister may make regulations

- (a) respecting the election or appointment of the members of a school council and the term or other conditions of election or appointment and the dissolution of a school council;
- (b) respecting the roles of the principal and the school council of a school and their respective powers, duties and responsibilities;
- (c) respecting any other matter the Minister considers necessary respecting school councils;
- (d) exempting a school or class of schools from the application of this section.

Under the Act, the school council has the discretion to advise the principal on any issue relating to the school and consult with the principal regarding school finances, policies and opportunities for students to meet the educational standards mandated by the Minister. The principal should consider this advice along with other information and input when making decisions.

Sections 60 and 61 (Appendix I) of the Act also allow school boards to delegate functions and duties to school councils. Therefore, your school council and you as principal must be aware of and act in keeping with your board's resolutions that delegate specific functions or duties to your school council in addition to those identified in Section 22 of the Act.

A school council also must conduct its business in keeping with the School Councils Regulation (Appendix IV). Though many of its members may be knowledgeable, you are the principal of the school and the member of the school council who may be the only one who serves from year to year. Members of the school council may rely on you to advise them about processes and procedures the council must act upon to ensure that regulatory requirements are met in respect to the election of council members, the scheduling of council meetings, the conducting of meetings and the submissions of reports to the school board.

Role of the Principal

The role of principal is pivotal to achieving school goals. You are accountable for the success of your school. It is important that, when appropriate, you provide meaningful opportunities for input to staff, students, parents, the school council and the community to guide you in making decisions. Your leadership shapes direction and policies; sets acceptable standards for achievement, behaviour and conduct; establishes the school climate and influences the commitment of staff, parents and community.

♦ PROVINCIAL LEGISLATION AND POLICY

The responsibilities of a school principal are defined in Section 20 of the School Act. This section states that the principal of a school must:

- a) provide instructional leadership in the school;
- b) ensure that the instruction provided by the teachers employed in the school is consistent with the courses of study and education programs prescribed, approved or authorized pursuant to this Act;

- c) evaluate or provide for the evaluation of programs offered in the school;
- d) ensure that students in the school have the opportunity to meet the standards of education set by the Minister;
- e) direct the management of the school;
- f) maintain order and discipline in the school and on the school grounds and during activities sponsored or approved by the board;
- g) promote co-operation between the school and the community that it serves;
- h) supervise the evaluation and advancement of students;
- i) evaluate the teachers employed by the school;
- j) subject to any applicable collective agreement and the principal's contract of employment, carry out those duties that are assigned to the principal by the board in accordance with the regulations and the requirements of the school council and the board.

Under the Act, one of the many responsibilities you are charged with is to promote co-operation between the school and the community that it serves. This provision demonstrates how important a positive, meaningful relationship between the school, school council and the community is in the eyes of the citizens of the province. It attests to the belief that for students to be successful there must be a true partnership between educators and the community.

In addition to promoting cooperation between the school and its community, you have other specific, legislated duties and obligations as school principal. You have line responsibilities for the management and operation of the school defined not only by legislation but also by school board resolutions and applicable collective agreements. Be sure that you are familiar with board resolutions and applicable collective agreements.

Provincial legislation recognizes that, given the complex communities that characterize our democratic society, you can fulfill your legislated duties only with the collaboration and support of the community and parents. Therefore, while the role of the school council may be advisory overall, you as principal need its support in order to meet the expectations of the community the school serves and to fulfill your legislated obligations.

School Councils Representing Groups of Education Partners

You most likely have heard the familiar adage, "It takes a whole community to raise a child." This has significant meaning for you, your school and community. The community can support the work of your school only if it is aware of what is going on. It is important to keep the community informed of the good news as well as the news that is not so positive. A community that understands the school and is involved in the serious business of the school tends to feel a sense of ownership for the school. This sense of ownership generates an enthusiasm and willingness to commit time, resources and energy to support the school in achieving its short and long-term goals. The time you spend in sharing information and building consensus about your school's goals and directions is time well spent.

In your role as the principal you can help the school council and community understand the importance of their roles. Research and everyday experience tells educators that involving parents in their child's education positively influences their child's learning. The school council has the potential to play a valuable role in the success of your school. It may inform the school staff of the needs of the parent community for information, resources and training so that community representatives and groups can contribute meaningfully to improve student achievement and support school initiatives. The school council may also provide information to parents that will help them to support and enhance the success of their children and, when necessary, promote change.

To assist the school council in fulfilling its mandate and operating effectively, as school principal you can encourage and support the school council in:

- ♦ focusing on the best interests of all students
- ♦ becoming well informed
- ♦ actively seeking and representing the views of the school community
- ♦ informing the school community of and involving it in discussions and deliberations about key issues
- ♦ encouraging all forms of parental involvement and support focused on improved student learning.

Of course, as role models in the learning community, you and other school council members must always act in a socially responsible and ethical manner.

III – STRATEGIES TO ASSIST YOUR SCHOOL COUNCIL IN BECOMING MORE EFFECTIVE

Assisting Your School Council in Understanding the School and its Policies

The school council should be aware of its rights and responsibilities as stipulated in the legislation and as delegated by the school board. The school council also needs an understanding of the basic policies, practices and routines of the school. The school council can be effective only when it fully understands its role and responsibilities and has access to necessary information. As part of the orientation of new members and on an ongoing basis, you should provide the school council with current information on topics such as:

- ◆ demographic and other school community contextual variables
- ◆ the range of programs offered within the school and the learning needs of the students
- ◆ the standards and targets set for achievement
- ◆ the purposes, uses and interpretation of standardized provincial test results
- ◆ the expectations and policies regarding safety, conduct and behaviour
- ◆ the operational budget
- ◆ school policies, including those about school volunteers, homework, absenteeism and field trips
- ◆ how the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy (FOIP) Act affects the school
- ◆ school governance and applicable board and provincial policies and directions
- ◆ the roles and responsibilities of key school personnel including the principal, support staff and other individuals such as school resource officers from law enforcement agencies.

Make the most of your fellow school council members; they are a powerful community resource. Ensure that they are well informed, adequately equipped and supported as volunteers so that they can provide you with support and sound advice.

Identifying Opportunities for Involvement Within the School

There are many opportunities for you to capitalize on the willingness and resources of your school council and other volunteers to contribute to the life of the school. Look for meaningful opportunities that are flexible with respect to time and that range from short-term, one-time events to longer-term commitments. Be prepared to offer some assistance or training if it is required or appropriate.

Since the school council's role is to advise and consult with you on school-based decisions about policies, programs and services (including the allocation of funds to support these), it is important that you foster the involvement of council members by:

- ♦ planning early in the school year, with the council chair, for consultations leading to the development of the school's three-year education plans
- ♦ encouraging their participation in school improvement discussions and other school-based decision-making processes
- ♦ supporting school direction and activities
- ♦ speaking positively and sharing good news with the community
- ♦ representing the school at district events organized for the parent community.

The school council is only one way for parents to participate in the life of the school. Your school council can also help identify and promote a variety of meaningful ways through which parents and members of the community can contribute to the school. Some examples include:

- ♦ inviting parents and members of the community with special expertise or interests (counselors, health professionals, artists, musicians) to speak at school council meetings
- ♦ establishing ad hoc committees through which parent and community volunteers can contribute their expertise or demonstrate their interests
- ♦ participating in and encouraging others to participate in school activities such as open houses, concerts and parent-teacher interviews

- ◆ serving as volunteers or mentors to students in school-approved activities
- ◆ listening to students read or reading to students
- ◆ serving as a conversation partner for students whose first language is not English
- ◆ maintaining the school council Web site
- ◆ organizing parent speakers for school career days
- ◆ providing orientation activities for families new to the school community.

IV – STRATEGIES FOR WORKING EFFECTIVELY WITH YOUR SCHOOL COUNCIL

Creating an Environment of Trust and Understanding

Although you are not the chair of the school council, your school council still looks to you for leadership because you are the educational leader of the school. Your school council must see and believe that all of your decisions and actions are based upon what is in the best interest of students. When your school council is confident that you consult them in decisions that directly affect the school, they will support you in developing and realizing a common school vision focused on student learning.

Developing Effective Two-Way Communication

Effective communication is critical in generating the required support to achieve the vision and goals you, your staff and the school council have for the school and its community. You must ensure that the communication is open, honest and reciprocal.

You should use a variety of ways for parents and community members to provide meaningful input to the decisions that effect the education of their children and the operation of the school. Some examples of how you can establish effective two-way communication are:

- ◆ a Parent and Community Response section in newsletters that are distributed within the community. The section may pose a question, solicit preferences or ask for a priority ranking
- ◆ a regular weekly or monthly Visit-with-the-Principal time period that is scheduled into your calendar when interested stakeholders may come by the school to speak with you
- ◆ random phone calls to parents to solicit feedback, gauge levels of satisfaction and identify any concerns or issues
- ◆ walking through the community and introducing yourself to non-parent families and small business establishments
- ◆ using the telephone messaging system to share information on homework, exam schedules, school events and school council meetings and topics
- ◆ invitations to school events as well as budget planning and goal-setting sessions
- ◆ hosting a budget review and results review evening
- ◆ ask a member of the school council to serve as a key communicator who attends school board meetings and shares the information with the school council and parent community
- ◆ provide an opportunity for the school council to post appropriate information on the school Web site
- ◆ town-hall meetings organized for specific purposes.

V – REFLECTING ON YOUR WORK WITH YOUR SCHOOL COUNCIL

Successful educational practitioners reflect on their practices and actions. The following chart and personal rating scale is an example of one method to help you reflect on your leadership role and practices in your work with your school council. The rating scale is used to identify areas of strength, areas in which you have grown and areas that you may wish to address in your personal professional development plan. The important element is that your reflection be ongoing throughout the school year so you can acknowledge your strengths and focus your time and energy into the appropriate growth areas.

The questions below are sample questions. You are encouraged to create your own chart using questions that are meaningful to your particular circumstance. Use the chart or one of your own creation to reflect on your work with your school council. Set appropriate dates throughout the school year to review your self rating and to improve your interactions with your school council.

Rating Scale:

1 – not at all                    2 – not very often                    3 – sporadically
 4 – most of the time            5 – all the time

VI – CONCLUSION

The role of a principal is demanding and complex, but you can be successful in fulfilling your role and in working collaboratively with your school council. Collaboration with members of the school community requires ongoing effort, attention and time. Sometimes real or perceived miscommunications do occur. To help you overcome difficulties, you may wish to take advantage of the resources listed in the following appendices.

APPENDIX III

Teaching Quality Standard Applicable to the Provision of Basic Education in Alberta

Teaching Quality Standard Applicable to the Provision of Basic Education in Alberta

Approved: May 14, 1997

1. Pursuant to section 25(1)(f) of the School Act, I approve the following as the Teaching Quality Standard which shall apply to teacher certification, professional development, supervision and evaluation, and which is supported by descriptors of selected knowledge, skills and attributes appropriate to teachers at different stages of their careers:

(1) Teaching Quality Standard

Quality teaching occurs when the teacher's ongoing analysis of the context, and the teacher's decisions about which pedagogical knowledge and abilities to apply result in optimum learning by students.

All teachers are expected to meet the Teaching Quality Standard throughout their careers. However, teaching practices will vary because each teaching situation is different and in constant change. Reasoned judgment must be used to determine whether the Teaching Quality Standard is being met in a given context.

(2) Descriptors of Knowledge, Skills and Attributes Related to Interim Certification

Teachers who hold an Interim Professional Certificate must possess the Knowledge, Skills and Attributes Related to Interim Certification (Interim KSAs), and apply them appropriately toward student learning. During their first two years of teaching, teachers should use the Interim KSAs to guide their teaching, reflect on their practice, and direct their professional development in collaboration with their supervisors and evaluators.

As situations warrant, teachers who hold an Interim Professional Certificate are expected to demonstrate consistently that they understand:

- a) contextual variables affect teaching and learning. They know how to analyse many variables at one time, and how to respond by making reasoned decisions about their teaching practice and students' learning;
- b) the structure of the Alberta education system. They know the different roles in the system, and how responsibilities and accountabilities are determined, communicated and enforced, including the expectations held of them under the Certification of Teachers Regulation, A.R. 261/90 as amended and their school authority's teacher's evaluation policy;
- c) the purposes of the Guide to Education and programs of study germane to the specialization or subject disciplines they are prepared to teach. They know how to use these documents to inform and direct their planning, instruction and assessment of student progress;
- d) the subject disciplines they teach. They have completed a structured program of studies through which they acquired the knowledge, concepts, methodologies and assumptions in one or more areas of specialization or subject disciplines taught in Alberta schools;
- e) all students can learn, albeit at different rates and in different ways. They know how (including when and how to engage others) to identify students' different learning styles and ways students learn. They understand the need to respond to differences by creating multiple paths to learning for individuals and groups of students, including students with special learning needs;
- f) the purposes of short, medium and long term range planning. They know how to translate curriculum and desired outcomes into reasoned, meaningful and incrementally progressive learning opportunities for students. They also understand the need to vary their plans to accommodate individuals and groups of students;
- g) students' needs for physical, social, cultural and psychological security. They know how to engage students in creating effective classroom routines. They know how and when to apply a variety of management strategies that are in keeping with the situation, and that provide for minimal disruptions to students' learning;
- h) the importance of respecting students' human dignity. They know how to establish, with different students, professional relationships that are characterized by mutual respect, trust and harmony;
- i) there are many approaches to teaching and learning. They know a broad range of instructional strategies appropriate to their area of specialization and the subject discipline they teach, and know which strategies are appropriate to help different students achieve different outcomes;
- j) the functions of traditional and electronic teaching/learning technologies. They know how to use and how to engage students in using these technologies to present and deliver content, communicate effectively with others, find and secure information, research, word process, manage information, and keep records;

- k) the purposes of student assessment. They know how to assess the range of learning objectives by selecting and developing a variety of classroom and large scale assessment techniques and instruments. They know how to analyse the results of classroom and large scale assessment instruments including provincial assessment instruments, and how to use the results for the ultimate benefit of students;
- l) the importance of engaging parents, purposefully and meaningfully, in all aspects of teaching and learning. They know how to develop and implement strategies that create and enhance partnerships among teachers, parents and students;
- m) student learning is enhanced through the use of home and community resources. They know how to identify resources relevant to teaching and learning objectives, and how to incorporate these resources into their teaching and students' learning;
- n) the importance of contributing, independently and collegially, to the quality of their school. They know the strategies whereby they can, independently and collegially, enhance and maintain the quality of their schools to the benefit of students, parents, community and colleagues;
- o) the importance of career-long learning. They know how to assess their own teaching and how to work with others responsible for supervising and evaluating teachers. They know how to use the findings of assessments, supervision and evaluations to select, develop and implement their own professional development activities;
- p) the importance of guiding their actions with a personal, overall vision of the purpose of teaching. They are able to communicate their vision, including how it has changed as a result of new knowledge, understanding and experience; and
- q) they are expected to achieve the Teaching Quality Standard.

(3) Descriptors of Knowledge, Skills and Attributes Related to Permanent Certification

Teachers who hold a Permanent Professional Certificate must demonstrate, in their practice, professional repertoires that are expanded beyond the Interim KSAs.

The following descriptors comprise a repertoire of selected knowledge, skills and attributes from which teachers who hold a Permanent Professional Certificate should be able to draw, as situations warrant, in order to meet the Teaching Quality Standard. Teachers, staffs, supervisors and evaluators should use the descriptors to guide professional development, supervision, evaluation and remediation strategies in order that teachers can meet the Teaching Quality Standard consistently throughout their careers.

- a) Teachers' application of pedagogical knowledge, skills and attributes is based in their ongoing analysis of contextual variables.

b) Teachers understand the legislated, moral and ethical frameworks within which they work.

Teachers function within a policy-based and results oriented education system authorized under the School Act and other legislation.

Teachers also function within policy frameworks established by school authorities. This includes policies which require: a commitment to teaching practices that meet their school authority's teaching quality standard(s); and that teachers engage in ongoing, individualized professional development.

Teachers recognize they are bound by standards of conduct expected of a caring, knowledgeable and reasonable adult who is entrusted with the custody, care or education of students or children. Teachers recognize their actions are bound in moral, ethical and legal considerations regarding their obligations to students, parents, administrators, school authorities, communities and society at large. Teachers acknowledge these obligations and act accordingly.

c) Teachers understand the subject disciplines they teach.

Teachers understand the knowledge, concepts, methodologies and assumptions of the subject disciplines they teach. This includes an understanding of how knowledge in each discipline is created and organized, and that subject disciplines are more than bodies of static facts and techniques - they are complex and evolving. Their understanding extends to relevant technologies, the linkages among subject disciplines, and their relevance and importance in everyday life at the personal, local, national and international levels.

Teachers understand that students typically bring preconceptions and understandings to a subject. They know strategies and materials that are of assistance in furthering students' understanding.

d) Teachers know there are many approaches to teaching and learning.

Teachers appreciate individual differences and believe all students can learn, albeit at different rates and in different ways. They recognize students' different learning styles and the different ways they learn, and accommodate these differences in individuals and groups of students including students with special learning needs.

Teachers understand the fluidity of teaching and learning. They constantly monitor the effectiveness and appropriateness of their practices and students' activities, and change them as needed.

e) Teachers engage in a range of planning activities.

Teachers' plans are founded in their understanding of contextual variables and are a record of their decisions on what teaching and learning strategies to apply. Plans outline a reasoned and incremental progression toward the attainment of desired outcomes, for both teachers and students. Teachers monitor the context, their instruction, and monitor and assess students' learning on an ongoing basis, and modify their plans accordingly.

Teachers strive to establish candid, open and ongoing lines of communication with students, parents, colleagues and other professionals, and incorporate information gained into their planning.

f) Teachers create and maintain environments that are conducive to student learning.

Teachers establish learning environments wherein students feel physically, psychologically, socially and culturally secure. They are respectful of students' human dignity, and seek to establish a positive professional relationship with students that is characterized by mutual respect, trust and harmony. They model the beliefs, principles, values, and intellectual characteristics outlined in the Guide to Education and programs of study, and guide students to do the same.

Teachers work, independently and cooperatively, to make their classrooms and schools stimulating learning environments. They maintain acceptable levels of student conduct, and use discipline strategies that result in a positive environment conducive to student learning. They work with students to establish classroom routines that enhance and increase students' involvement in meaningful learning activities. They organize facilities, materials, equipment and space to provide students equitable opportunities to learn, and to provide for students' safety.

Where community members work with students either on-campus or off-campus and where students are engaged in school-sponsored off-campus activities, teachers strive to ensure these situations also are secure and positive environments conducive to students' learning.

g) Teachers translate curriculum content and objectives into meaningful learning activities.

Teachers clearly communicate short and long range learning expectations to students, and how the expectations are to be achieved and assessed. They engage students in meaningful activities that motivate and challenge them to achieve those expectations. They integrate current learning with prior learning, and provide opportunities for students to relate their learning to the home, community and broader environment.

Teachers apply a broad range and variety of instructional and learning strategies. The strategies vary in keeping with contextual variables, subject content, desired objectives, and the learning needs of individuals and groups of students. The strategies are selected and used to achieve desired outcomes, primarily the expectations outlined in the Guide to Education, programs of study and other approved programs.

h) Teachers apply a variety of technologies to meet students' learning needs.

Teachers use teaching/learning resources such as the chalkboard, texts, computers and other auditory, print and visual media, and maintain an awareness of emerging technological resources. They keep abreast of advances in teaching/learning technologies and how they can be incorporated into instruction and learning. As new technologies prove useful and become available in schools, teachers develop their own and their students' proficiencies in using the technologies purposefully, which may include content presentation, delivery and research applications, as well as word processing, information management and record keeping.

Teachers use electronic networks and other telecommunication media to enhance their own knowledge and abilities, and to communicate more effectively with others.

i) Teachers gather and use information about students' learning needs and progress.

Teachers monitor students' actions on an ongoing basis to determine and respond to their learning needs. They use a variety of diagnostic methods that include observing students' activities, analysing students' learning difficulties and strengths, and interpreting the results of assessments and information provided by students, their parents, colleagues and other professionals.

Teachers select and develop a variety of classroom assessment strategies and instruments to assess the full range of learning objectives. They differentiate between classroom and large-scale instruments such as provincial achievement tests, administer both and use the results for the ultimate benefit of students.

They record, interpret and use the results of their assessments to modify their teaching practices and students' learning activities.

Teachers help students, parents and other educators interpret and understand the results of diagnoses and assessments, and the implications for students. They also help students develop the ability to diagnose their own learning needs and to assess their progress toward learning goals.

Teachers use their interpretations of diagnoses and assessments as well as students' work and results to guide their own professional growth. They assist school councils and members of the community to understand the purposes, meanings, outcomes and implications of assessments.

j) Teachers establish and maintain partnerships among school, home and community, and within their own schools.

Teachers engage in activities that contribute to the quality of the school as a learning environment. They work with others to develop, coordinate and implement programs and activities that characterize effective schools. They also work cooperatively with school councils.

Teachers strive to involve parents in their children's schooling. Partnerships with the home are characterized by the candid sharing of information and ideas to influence how teachers and parents, independently and cooperatively, contribute to students' learning.

Teachers seek out and incorporate community resources into their instruction, and encourage students to use home and community resources in their learning. Teachers make connections between school, home and community in order to enhance the relevance and meaning of learning. Home and community resources are utilized to make learning meaningful and relevant, and so students can gain an increased understanding of the knowledge, skills and attitudes needed to participate in and contribute positively to society.

k) Teachers are career-long learners.

Teachers engage in ongoing professional development to enhance their understanding of and ability to analyze the context of teaching; ability to make reasoned judgments and decisions; and, pedagogical knowledge and abilities. They recognize their own professional needs and work with others to meet those needs. They share their professional expertise to the benefit of others in their schools, communities and profession.

Teachers guide their actions by their overall visions of the purpose of teaching. They actively refine and redefine their visions in light of the ever-changing context, new knowledge and understandings, and their experiences. While these visions are dynamic and grow in depth and breadth over teachers' careers, the visions maintain at their core a commitment to teaching practices through which students can achieve optimum learning.

The rating scale is used to identify areas of strength, areas in which you have grown and areas that you may wish to address in your personal, professional development plan. The important element is that your reflection be ongoing throughout the school year so you may acknowledge your strengths and focus your time and energy into the appropriate growth areas. You are encouraged to create your own chart using questions that are meaningful to your particular circumstance. Set the review dates appropriately throughout the school year.

Rating Scale:

1 – not at all                    2 – not very often                    3 – sporadically
